WOULD ELECTRIC LIGHT THE TOWN

Eastern Promotors Negotiate with Local Board of Trade

TO INSTALL 150 H.P. POWER PLANT

Company Wants Exclusive 50 Year Franchise for Operation

An Eastern company desires an exclusive franchise for twenty years for the electric lighting of Wainwright, and has already submitted a proposition for the immediate installation of a power plant in the event of it being accepted. Such is the subject matter of a letter from Mr. W. Cuthbert, who is acting in the interests of this Eastern company, and who is particularly desirous of locating here.

Mr. Cuthbert desires to enter into a contract or agreement with the town for the exclusive right to light the streets and install sufficient plant to furnish residences with illumination. The company will furnish an up-to-date plant of fifty horse power or thirty-five thousand candle power for the town's use, the sum to be paid for its use being $5,000 per year, guaranteeing at the same time to furnish additional power at the rate of $00 per year per horse power or seven hundred candle power.

The fifty horse power, according to Mr. Cuthbert, would be sufficient to light the town and pump all the water necessary for the town's use. It is their intention, however, in the event of a satisfactory agreement being made, to install a plant of one hundred and fifty horse power, of which fifty would be necessary for the town's immediate use, the balance of the power would be sold to private consumers.

Nothing definite has been done either in the acceptance or the refusal of the proposal, although the matter will be looked into at an early date.

STATION GROUND WILL SOON BE BEAUTIFIED

It is stated that the G. T. P. officials have made final arrangements for the grading and beautifying of the grounds around the local station, and Contractor Arthur Johnston will have charge of the grading, a contract having already been signed.

This work was laid out last year by Professor Broderick of the Winnipeg University, and plans were drawn for the layout of the surroundings. Flower gardens paved sidewalks and shrubs will beautify the station property before the summer has passed, and from all reports the work will start at once.

Mrs. N. R. Dingman left here on Sunday for New Westminster where she will join her husband, who is at present located at Port Mann, a new town of the C. N. R., two miles from New Westminster. Miss Ham, who has been nursing at Dr. Watson's private hospital accompanied Mrs. Dingman and will go to Vancouver. Many local acquaintances were at the train to bid both "bon voyage".

Negotiations Now on for Special Trains

Negotiations are now being made with General Passenger Agent W. P. Hinton, of the G. T. P., for special trains from Edmonton and Biggar for July 1st., when Dominion Day will be celebrated here. The matter is in charge of Mr. W. J. McPhee and Mr. J. L. Gerow, members of the executive of the W. A. A.

Board of Trade Goes on Record; Says, "Invest First in Original Townsite"

Advises that Purchasers Buy Inside Property Before Buying Outside Stuff

The local board of trade has not declared itself as greatly opposed to the purchase of suburban property, yet the members have placed themselves on record as not being particularly in favor of outside subdivisions before the original townsite is considered.

At a meeting of the board on Saturday evening last, a motion was introduced and carried, which read something like this, "Resolved that investors in Wainwright property should be advised to purchase in the original townsite before investing in sub-division property, as the difference between the prices in the two are not sufficient to warrant buying outside the town limits. We consider the original townsite offers a safe investment, while subdivision property is a speculation for sometime to come."

SASKATCHEWAN PARTY SECURES GILT EDGE LAND

$20,000 Farm Land Deal Put Through and by Experienced Men

PURCHASERS WERE WESTERN PIONEERS

Contract for Extensive Breaking Has Already been Let in District

A $20,000 deal was put through last week by the Wainwright Realty Company, with the result that more than two sections of farm lands in the famous Gilt Edge district are now in the hands of a number of experienced Saskatchewan farmers, who have decided to locate in these parts.

Mr. Frank Traynor and John Parton, of Bonnie View, Sask., put through the deal with the Wainwright Realty Co., and left here well satisfied with their purchase. About the first of June, a large party will arrive here to work the land and get it in shape for next year's crop. A contract for breaking two hundred acres has already been let and operations will start immediately.

Both Mr. Traynor and Mr. Parton are old Saskatchewan settlers, yet they have decided to leave that province and have chosen Wainwright in preference to all other localities.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mott returned here on Monday from Camrose, where Mr. Mott has recently disposed of his business, and is now here to stay. He is located on a valuable quarter section, near the Battle River

GOOD FEATURES OF DISTRICT AND TOWN WILL BE READ BY HALF MILLION OR MORE FORTUNE SEEKERS

Visit from Editor of Important Chicago Journal will Give Town Much Publicity

PUBLICATION GOES INTO HANDS OF OPPORTUNITY SEEKERS

Representative was Pleasingly Impressed and Departed Well Satisfied

From the many favorable writeups and other articles on Wainwright and the adjacent district, together with additional publicity which both will receive during the next few months, there is no reason to fear that the good features of this locality are not and will not be heralded in many parts of both this and the European continent.

Representatives of noteworthy publication in both Canada and the United States are giving no little space to Wainwright these days, and the latest writer of fame to interest himself and his journal in this part of the West is Mr. J. E. Ricker, managing editor of the Chicago publication, entitled, "Opportunity". Mr. Ricker visited here last week in company with Mr. R. C. W. Lett, Colonization Agent of the G. T. P., and was given the hand of welcome by the local board of trade and much information, relative to the town and district. He was not slow to notice that Wainwright afforded many opportunities, which will in time to come evolve themselves into realties. He was confident that the town deserved every commendation and could be represented on its merits.

Previous to his departure, Mr. Ricker stated that he was particularly struck with the young element in the town. Absolute optimism and confidence prevailed and it would surely result in strides of progress and advancement.

"Opportunity" is a magazine, boasting of a circulation of half a million and has a class of subscribers who are looking for opportunities in Canada. With a description of the town and the good features of the district, there is reason to believe that Wainwright will receive much publicity as a result of Mr. Ricker visiting here.

LOCAL PARTIES MOURN LOSS OF THE DROWNED

Several of those Drowned on Titantic Had Friends and Relatives Here

Many of those who went down with the ill-fated Titanic last week, were well known to local parties, some even having relatives and close friends among the lost. Especially was this true of Winnipeg men, Hugo Ross, Mark Fortune, George Graham and others were well and favourably known by many citizens, who received the news with great regret.

Mr. R. A. Snyder had a cousin on board the Titanic who went down with the ship, in the person of Mr. W. C. Snyder, Milwaukee, who was returning with his bride from a honeymoon trip on the continent. His wife, however, was saved.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. George Murray, on Monday, April 15th., a daughter.

Local Option Again

According to the Edmonton Bulletin, Presbyterian Divines in that city are about to start a local option campaign. The likelihood of such a campaign is reported to have been hinted at by Rev. Dr. McQueen and Dr. Dyde, who spoke at a meeting recently held there by the Temperance and Moral Reform League.

THOROUGHBRED STOCK IS GAINING FAVOR HERE

Thoroughbred Live-Stock Purchased by Progressive Gilt Edge Farmers

Thoroughbred stock is rapidly gaining favor among the farmers of the Wainwright district, and fabulous sums are being expended by certain progressive residents of the districts in their determination to obtain nothing but the best and most superior stock.

Last week, Mr. W. A. Harris and George Babb, of Gilt Edge, visited the cattle show at Edmonton and purchased two thoroughbred Hereford bulls, prize winners at the exhibit. They arrived by Saturday's train and have since been greatly admired by many farmers, who are contemplating raising nothing but thoroughbred stock.

MISSED PASSAGE ON TITANIC BY CHAIN OF PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCES

McKennery's Change of Way of New York and Passage was Paid for on S.S. Titanic

Captain J. A. McKennery, who constructed station houses along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific last year, passed through here on Monday en route to Edmonton. Captain McKennery is returning from a trip around the world, and arrived in New York from London the same day as the Carpathia, on which the survivors of the Titanic were brought safely to land. He states that he had a deposit paid on his fare to Canada on the Titanic, but a mere circumstance prevented him from taking the trip on that boat.

Captain McKennery has been spoken of through these columns a number of times in connection with several interesting events. He first passed through here in company with his wife, who is the daughter of General Botha, who fought in the Boer war. At the sale of Mirror lots last summer, he purchased upwards of $100,000 worth of property. He was formerly connected with the London Daily "Mirror".

Doc Watson is Still the "Topnotcher"

A shoot of the expert marksmen took place last Friday afternoon and was attended by representatives of the different cartridge firms together with local sports, who have distinguished themselves at the traps. Although Ed. Mead was on hand, Doc Watson won the honours of the day with a "skidoo knockdown" of 23. He still maintains the record for the year.

LOCAL BRICKYARD WITH NEW PLANT WILL EMPLOY AT LEAST FORTY MEN ACCORDING TO REPORTS

New Machinery will be Here Soon and Brick will be Turned Out AT RATE OF 60,000 EVERY 24 HOURS

Manager Taylor Already Has Orders for More than One Million

Although the machinery and plant to be installed at the local brick yard has not yet arrived, the assurance is given that the industry will shortly be a valuable asset to the town. With a daily turnout of sixty thousand bricks, a large crew of men will be employed and the probability is that at least forty men will be able to find employment around the yard.

It is reported, and the statement has been confirmed, that the new company already has orders for one million and a quarter, delivery to be made at the earliest possible moment. Manager John Taylor is now getting things in shape for the installation of the machinery and the opening up of the season's work.

The Ladies' Aid of Grace Methodist Church will hold a home cooking sale on Saturday next, April 27th., in the furniture store of Messrs. P. J. Baird & Son, from 3 to 6 P. M. All cordially invited.

Joe Norwick left here on Sunday for Fort William and other Eastern points, where he will probably locate. He will also proceed to Detroit where his wife has been for sometime past. He was accompanied by James Ensmer. Both went out on strike with the boilermakers and machinists.

Several local parties visited Edmonton last week, including Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Mills, Mr. H. V. Fieldhouse and others, all of whom returned here by Sunday's express.

The seeding of wheat will be completed by the latter part of the month, according to farmers who have observed the progress being made in the outlying districts. In many parts, seeding is already finished.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR DOMINION DAY FIGHT

Is Believed that Howard and Burns Have Arranged Edmonton Bout

A match has practically been arranged between Jack Howard and Tommy Burns, and the fight will in all probability take place in Edmonton around May 24th. Such is the announcement made yesterday by Howard's local backer, and while here last week, the well-known wrestler was of the opinion that his manager, Bob McDonald, would succeed in drawing up an agreement.

If a fight has been arranged, prospects look very bright for the final match here on Dominion Day, when Wille will meet either Howard or Burns.

Mrs. Lally left here on yesterday's express for Saskatoon where she will visit friends for a few days before returning home.

Business Along G.T.P. is Increasing Rapidly

Local Grand Trunk Pacific employees state that the work along the line is very brisk these days. Extra train crews are being made up and there are no idle days for those who are in a position to work. Many are ordered out again on their arrival here, and the summer work looks very promising.

Board of Trade Condoles with G.T.P. over Death of President of Road Chas. M. Hays

Message of Condolence Forwarded to First Vice President Wainwright

When it was definitely known last week that Mr. C. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk Pacific had gone down with the illfated Titanic, the local board of trade forwarded a telegram to First Vice-President William Wainwright, which read as follows:—

"The Wainwright Board of Trade desire to express their very deep regret at the incalculable loss your company has sustained through the death of Mr. Chas. M. Hays."

In reply, a telegram was received on Sunday from Mr. Wainwright, expressing his gratitude for the board's sympathy,—"Accept my thanks for the kind expression of sympathy received from the Board of Trade. It was a terrible calamity."

HIGHWAYS ACT TO BE ENFORCED

Clauses Relating to Speed and Lights After Dark to be Enforced

SPEED LIMITS ON THE TOWN STREETS

Constable Webster Gets Instructions to See that Law is Observed

The reproduction of and an acquaintance with the provincial act, governing travelling on public highways and bridges, might serve to create a better understanding between local automobilists, pedestrains and other travellers on the public highways. The act is entitled, "The Highways Act" and the particular articles referred to may be found in Chapter 6, which became law on January 1st., 1912.

Article 11 states that motor vehicles shall carry during the period from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise at least two lighted lamps, showing visible lights for at least two hundred feet. When the lamps are lighted, the number of the license must be shown distinct and plain. Under section 20, the speed one mile in four minutes, nor one mile in six minutes in turning a corner.

Other sections which are unknown to many calls for reduced speed on the approach of any traveller on the highway. Such motor vehicles must slow down to a speed not exceeding one mile in ten minutes and if demanded by any person apprehensive of danger, the motor must be brought to a halt, until a reasonable distance is passed.

The local territorial constable, R. E. R. Webster, has received instructions that the ordinance must be strictly enforced.

Council Went into Committee and Both Public and Press Given Gentle Highball

The nature of the business transacted at last night's meeting of the council was confined to but a few items, for after the discussion of these, the council went into committee and the public was given an invitation to vacate the chamber. What the nature of the business then was is difficult to say.

While the public and the press were allowed to remain, an important communication was received from the law firm of Cormack & McKay, with a claim of $714 in favor of M. Kilfoyle, who was confined to the Edmonton hospital with typhoid fever, and the foundation of the claim was based on the charge that the board of health failed to perform its duties, and the town had failed to see that that the body had.

Town Solicitor Fieldhouse who was present explained the legal points of the claim, and stated that the town was in no

YOUR BABY'S SKIN

Is the most delicate fabric in the world. You may cause it permanent harm by using poisonous mineral ointments for the little rashes and eruptions that every baby suffers from occasionally. Don't take any chances. Use Zam-Buk, the baby's best balm.

Zam-Buk is made from fine herbal extracts, and is free from any harmful poisonous coloring matter. Like the grasses and the flowers, nature has colored it green. It is nature's own healer!

Most ointments and salves have, as their foundation, various animal oils and fats. Zam-Buk does not contain one atom of animal substance. Most ointments and salves are too coarse to be absorbed by the tender delicate skin of a baby, and remain on the skin an irritating mass. Just put a little Zam-Buk on baby's skin, and see how soon it is absorbed, showing conclusively that the pores of the skin are greedy for it.

Use nothing but Zam-Buk for baby's skin troubles and wash with Zam-Buk Soap.

Zam-Buk should also be used for cuts, burns, scalds, eczema, piles, ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

A Yukon Bonanza.

A new gold discovery, regarded as one of the best since the days of the Klondike discovery in 1898 was made here last week, about seventy miles from the mouth of Sixtymile River, 120 miles southwest of Dawson and twenty-five miles from the Alaska line. The find is said to average about $1 to the square foot of bedrock. Some two hundred men have already gone from here on a stampede to stake claims, notwithstanding a temperature of 30 degrees below zero and snow on the ground fifteen inches deep. A very reliable miner, who has been engaged in mining here since the gold rush in 1908, was the discoverer. He reports the formations in sinking a shaft 19 1-2 feet to bedrock as follows: Six inches of muck; 6 feet of gravel containing gold, 3 cents to the pan; 6 feet of muck and 7 feet of gravel to bedrock where the gold is found. In cleaning up the surface of the bedrock a space of 5 by 8 feet, he obtained $40 worth of high grade gold, as shown by the gold commissioner's scales here. He reports the valley in which the discovery was made to be 20 miles long and 2,000 feet wide, with good working gravel quite similar to that of the famous Bonanza Creek of the Klondike, and frozen solid from the surface to bedrock, making a safe roof for mining.

This gold is quite similar to that found in other localities here and in the same formation of gravel. Should the rest of the valley prove one fourth as good as the discovery claim is represented to be, many more millions of dollars in gold will be added to the one hundred and fifty-odd millions the Yukon Territory has already produced.

Deep Plowing Pays.

James L. Riddle of Windsor, Colorado, writes: "So many dry-farmers in this vicinity are doing shallow plowing, or merely discing, that they laugh at me for plowing deep, but I was one of the few that had any wheat last summer. I did not have very much, yet enough to show what is possible in good years under the methods advocated by Parsons and others."

A letter received from E. R. Parsons, who for many years has been one of the most interested and successful dry-farmers in eastern Colorado says: "There isn't a single man in my county (Douglass County, Colorado) who raised a bite of anything this year who plowed less than eight inches."

Never Again.

"I notice that you courteously refrain from mentioning the name of your political rival in any of the speeches."

"I can't say my practice in that respect is so much a matter of courtesy as of prudence. I once started in to denounce a rival, but as soon as I mentioned his name the audience burst into deafening and continuous applause."—Washington Star.

Why He Wouldn't Look Pleasant

Seeing that his repeated requests to look pleasant only caused his subject to scowl more fiercely, the photographer ceased to look pleasant himself. "If you can't cheer up," he said, "we might as well call this sitting off. You seem an amiable sort of chap. Why can't you look pleasant when I tell you?"

"Because I don't want to," said the man before the camera. "My wife is going to send these pictures to some relatives of hers whom I have never seen, along with an invitation to visit us soon, and it is my intention to look like a brigand, so they won't come."

The Ventriloquy of Birds

Whence and why is the power of ventriloquy that many birds possess? (asks a writer in the Nation.) The meadow-pipit, or the cornbrake, can sit in one place and make its voice seem to come from many alternate spots. It may be a trick impressed by the ages as a means for bewildering one's enemies, for comrade call and danger call seem, to our blunt ears at any rate, to be the same in these species. The cornbrake must be of an artistically playful disposition, for he calls like that, now near, and far, when he is, undoubtedly calling his mate.

Dickens And Miss Weller.

Dickens himself was once embarrassed by one of his names. This was when he was presented to a Miss Weller, whose beauty and talent delighted him. He described to a friend his mixed feelings at finding the name he had made grotesque borne by so gracious a lady. He afterwards introduced a friend, and a marriage followed in time. On the morning after that first meeting Dickens sent to this unforeseen kind of Weller some verses in which he protested his regret that he could not hope to change her name for he was married and "Pickwick" was published.

Not That Kind of Sinner

A story is told of a certain clergyman who was fond of making sharp remarks. One day, after a fall of snow, he was wending his way along a country road in company with a parishioner. His companion suddenly stepped upon a hidden slide, and came down with a thud.

Looking gravely down at him, the pastor solemnly said:—

"Ah, my friend, sinners stand on slippery places."

"Yes, I see they do, but I can't," was the indignant rejoinder of the fallen member of his flock.

King George at Home.

When King George entered his private room on his return from his Indian visit he found a mass of correspondence arranged for his examination that made him smile. "Enough work here for a month, I suppose," he remarked to Lord Stamfordham. It was plain that he was only too anxious to get to work. His quick, alert manner, of moving about, glancing with pleasure at various objects in his apartments, pausing every now and then to make some brief reference to matters that immediately interested him, was gratifying to behold, since it indicated better than anything else could have done the downright joy that he felt at being back in his London "home," while it equally conclusively demonstrated that his health had not been impaired by the fatigues of the last few months.

Bullet Proof Shield.

Lieut. Bisbini of the Thirty-second Infantry, who is now at Tripoli, has invented a bullet proof shield which can be put to different uses with great advantage. The shield consists of a flat plate of tempered steel 12 inches wide and 16 inches long, shaped like a spade. When fitted to one of the tent poles the shield can serve the purpose of a spade for digging trenches in the sand. In skirmishing soldiers can use it to take cover by lying on the ground and firing from behind the shield through the hole, which is large enough to admit the barrel of the rifle. The shield can also be used when soldiers fire kneeling, and in bayonet charges it can be strapped over the left arm and serve the purpose of a regular shield. On the march the shield, which is very light is hung over the knapsack. The Bisbini shield has been experimented with successfully and found bullet proof at 100 yards, so that very probably it will be adopted as an essential part of the equipment of infantry soldiers.

Industrial Accidents.

According to the record of industrial accidents kept by the Department of Labour, 61 persons were killed and 178 injured during February, 1912. This record compares very favourably with that of January, when 86 workmen were killed and 214 injured. Compared with February, 1911, the record is still more favourable, as 93 were killed and 197 injured in that month. The worst disaster of the past month was the premature explosion of dynamite on construction work near Fort Frances, Ont., on the line of the Canadian Northern Railway, by which 13 construction hands were killed and six others seriously injured.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

The Tell-Tale Thumb.

The thumb confesses the man; no man is clever enough to deceive it. It has been divided into three parts, typifying the three qualities that master the world—will, logic, and love. The first, or nail phalange, signifies will; the second logic, the third, which is the boundary of the Mount of Venus, love.

When the thumb is unequally developed and the first phalange is extremely long, it is neither love nor logic that governs the individual, but merely sheer will. If the middle phalange be much longer than the first, reason predominates; yet the man may not have the power to will himself to do that which his reason dictates.

When the third phalange is long and the thumb is short, man is revealed as the slave of the senses, guided neither by will nor reason.

If the thumb is supple-jointed, the individual is easy-going, spendthrift, careless of time, money, energy, opportunity and all things.

If it be firm-jointed he is cautious, watchful, keen, diplomatic, tireless in planning, confident and sure of success, self-possessed and self-controlling.

Your Mother

Do not forget to manifest an interest in whatever interests or amuses her. Though she is old and wrinkled she loves pretty things. Make her frequent simple presents, and be sure they are appropriate and tasteful.

Remember that she is still a girl at heart, so far as delicate little attentions are concerned. Give her your full confidence, and never do anything which you think she would disapprove. Make her a partaker, so far as your different ages will permit, in all your pleasures and recreations.

Lift all the burdens you can from the shoulders that have grown stooped in waiting upon and working for you. Never intimate by word or deed that your world and hers are different, or that you feel in any way superior to her.

Treat her with the unvarying courtesy and deference that you accord to those who are above you in rank or position. Study her tastes and habits, her likes and dislikes, and cater to them as far as possible in an unobtrusive way.

Bear patiently with all her peculiarities or infirmities of temper or disposition, which may well be the result of a life of care and toil. Remember that her life is monotonous compared with yours, and take her to some suitable place of amusement or for a little trip to the country, or to the city if your home is in the country, as frequently as possible.

Where Barbers are Paid.

There ought to be a rush of barbers' assistants to Australia. In Melbourne, from the beginning of this year, the legal wage of the journeyman shaver and hair-cutter has been fixed at £3 a week. This is a considerable advance on the rate hitherto prevailing—£2 5s. The masters propose to shift this additional burden on to the shoulders of the hairy public by raising the price of a hair-cut to a shilling and a shave to sixpence. The Melbournians are threatening to boycott the barber's shop, learn to shave themselves, and get their wives to cut their hair. Now one wa[illegible] to know [illegible] wives have [illegible]

Smart!

Brown—"I say, Smith, are you good at conundrums?"

Smith—"My boy, I am great at such things. Fire away."

Brown—"Well, if it takes a man three days to chew a ham weighing ten pounds, how long will it take the same man to chew a hammer weighing six pounds?"

Smith (after considering some time)—"I'll give it up, old chap."

Brown (as he prepares to dodge things)—"It will depend whether he is a professional or a hammer-chewer."

Secret of Long Life.

The true secret of health and long life lies in very simple things. Don't worry. Don't overeat. Don't starve. Fresh air day and night. Sleep and rest abundantly. Spend less nervous energy each day than you make. Be cheerful. "Work like a man, but don't be worked to death." Avoid passion and excitement. Associate with healthy people. Health is contagious as well as disease. Don't carry the whole world on your shoulders, far less the universe. Never despair. "Lost hope is a fatal disease."

A Remarkable Fish Story.

Delivering an address at the Surveyors' Institution in London on Monday evening, Mr. Julian C. Rogers quoted the following from Kilburne's topography of Kent, published in 1667, a copy of which was in the library:

"A monstrous fish shot himself ashore (in Thanet), where from want of water he died, as fish sometimes do under such circumstances. His roaring was heard above a mile. His length was 22 yards, his nether jaw opening 12 feet. One of his eyes was more than a cart with six horses could draw, his tongue was 15 feet, and his liver two cart-loads.

The Color Scheme

Cohen, the spider, sat behind his counter, waiting for the flies. Business, as usual, was very bad, and if he didn't work off a good sale on his next customer, his name wasn't what it was.

A burly form sauntered through the doorway.

"I want a blue suit, please!" demanded the new-comer.

Cohen rubbed his hands. "A vat?" he inquired. There was no blue suit in the shop.

"A blue suit," repeated the customer.

"Vait one minute," returned Cohen, as he bolted into the parlor. "Quick, Thomolon, thonny! Change the thkylight! There'th a man in the shop that wanth a blue thuit."

A very fat man who had just retired from the grocery trade was one day met on the street by a friend. The friend, wishing to chaff him, said:—

"You are failing since you retired from business. You are so thin I hardly knew you."

"Probably I am," replied the ex-grocer. "I certainly don't weigh so much as I did when I was in the grocery business."

Two officers in the Belgian army have invented a mitrailleuse for a carriage to be drawn by dogs. In Belgium the dog has to work for his living, and one—perhaps the only—unpleasant sight in that country is to see dogs struggling under burdens almost greater than they can bear. The new gun-carriage will be drawn by two good mastiffs. In the distance it resembles a milk-cart. The framework is of iron, and the wheels have pneumatic tyres. The spokes are of polished steel, a little stouter than that which is employed by the cyclemaker.

The Queen Talks to Her Children.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — A Royal Prank And What Came Of the Venture

EVELYN had been deep in a fairy book when the call came to go to bed. "My, but I should like to be a princess!" she exclaimed. "Then I could do as I pleased."

"Oh, a fine princess you would make!" jeered Jack.

"I'm not sure a princess can have her way as often as a little American girl may," daddy said thoughtfully.

"Queen Victoria of England taught her children to be kind and thoughtful of even the humblest person whom they met.

"The story is told that one day some of the little princes and princesses were strolling through the halls of her palace when they spied a maid blacking and polishing the grate of the open fireplace in one of the big rooms.

"One of the children thought what a fine joke it would be to steal in, get the blacking before the maid noticed them and then black her face with it.

"They carried out their joke, and after it the poor girl was a sight. Not only was her face black, but her dress and apron were covered with blacking.

"They soon forgot about their prank, but some one happened to tell their mother, Queen Victoria, of what they had done. She was very angry and called the children before her.

"'Can it be possible that you have been so rude and unkind to this poor girl?' said the queen sternly. The children could not deny it.

"'Have you any excuse to make for spoiling her dress and making sport of her?'

"Somebody ventured to say sheepishly that it had been only a joke.

"'It is a naughty joke and unbecoming a royal prince or princess,' said their mother coldly.

"'We are sorry now. We did not think then,' some little culprit spoke up.

"'Very well. It is to the poor girl herself and not to me you must say you are sorry. Besides, you must buy her another dress. Each of you must save up your pocket money until you have enough to get a nice one.'

"The little princes and princesses looked at one another in dismay. After their talk with their mother they were ashamed of what they had done and did not like to go to the servant with an apology. But they could do that more cheerfully than deny themselves their pocket money. The queen, their mother, allowed them each a small weekly sum, no more than many an American boy and girl whose parents are not even rich is given.

"The children knew that when they were told by their mother that something should be done they must obey. So slowly and sadly they went to look up the servant girl and tell her that they were sorry and that in place of the dress which they had spoiled they would buy her another and handsomer one."

Some Mourner.

Down in Georgia a negro, who had his life insured for several hundred dollars, died and left the money to his widow. She immediately bought herself a very elaborate mourning outfit.

Showing her purchase to her friend, she was very particular in going into detail as to prices and all incidental particulars. Her friend was very much impressed, and remarked:

"Them sho is fine close, but, befo' heaven, what is you goin' to do wid all dis black underwear?"

The bereaved one sighed:

Strikes During February.

The strike situation in Canada continues on the whole favourable according to the latest reports of the Department of Labour. Few disputes of importance occurred during February, the one affecting most employees being that of the cloak and garment workers in the employ of T. Eaton Company, Toronto and Montreal. About 600 employees were affected by this dispute. Altogether there were twelve strikes in existence during February affecting about 50 firms and 1,200 employees. The loss of time in working days was approximately 10,000, compared with 12,000 days lost from the same cause during January, and over 32,000 days lost in February, 1911. Eight strikes remained in existence at the close of the month.

A group of old men were giving their reminiscences of Lincoln. "My wife collected autographs," said one. "She once wrote to Lincoln for a sentiment and his autograph, and she got in reply a note that ran—'Dear Madam,—When you ask from a stranger that which is of interest only to yourself, always enclose a stamp. There's your sentiment, and here's your autograph.—A. Lincoln!'"

One of the most striking innovations in a reconstructed London hotel is a signalling apparatus, which does away with indeterminate bell-ringing. By pressing a button in his bedroom the visitor can signal for the waiter, chamber-maid, or valet, a colored light appearing simultaneously over the bedroom-door, in the corridor, in the service-room, and in the office, where a staff is always on duty. The light can only be switched off at the bedroom door, so that the office staff is always able to notice if there is any delay in replying to the visitor's signal.

VERMILION DRAMATIC CLUB MADE HIT WITH COMEDY "WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES"

Amateur Company Presents Comedy Here Before Well-Pleased Audience

Although composed of entirely amateur actors and actresses, the Vermilion Dramatic Club attained a pronounced success here on Friday evening last with their popular comedy entitled, "What Happened to Jones", and held the distinction of having presented one of the most enjoyable and successful comedies in the local Auditorium. From the fact that it was an amateur company from a neighboring sister town, local theatre-goers turned out in large numbers and showed their appreciation throughout by generous and frequent applause.

Mr. R. G. Dunsmore, as Jones in the disguised role of the Bishop, was easily the star of the evening and handled his part with particular favor. Ebenezer Goodly, represented by Mr. M. G. Brimacombe, also played his part well, and afforded a large percentage of the humor with his many difficult and peculiar predicaments. Mrs. W. S. Cash as Mrs. Goodly took a very difficult part, and dealt with it accordingly. Although taking a minor character as Helma, the wench servant, Miss Wetherbee was one one of the most popular of the company, and her negress dialect was first class. The other members also came in for much deserving credit, and in this connection, Mr. Ken Miller, as the original Bishop, should be mentioned among those in the front benches.

The several high class specialties between acts were well worthy of distinct applause and were received in this manner. Mr. A. E. Pilkie with the popular song entitled, "If the Wind Had only Blown the Other Way", could easily be rated among the best of amateur comedians, although he displayed nothing more that his usual and every-day wit and humor.

G.T.P. WILL HAVE PALATIAL LINE OF HOTELS

Further details of the great chain of palatial hostelries which the Grand Trunk authorities expect to have completed with the opening of the G. T. P. in 1914 are now to hand. Plans for the Edmonton Hotel are completed and the contract is soon to be let. Provision has been made for more than 150 rooms, and the total cost will be over $750,000. A similar building is planned for Regina, and one of the finest hotels of the entire series will be built in the vicinity of Mount Robson, while the final link will be at Prince Rupert. All will be furnished and fitted out in the same artistic and elaborate manner as the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa and the Fort Garry in Winnipeg now nearing completion. A grand opening of the entire system is planned for the trip of the first transcontinental train, and it is hoped that negotiations being carried on with the British Government may result in securing His Majesty George V as one of its passengers. Such an event would indeed be an auspicious inauguration for Canada's great national line.

THE WORLD'S STANDARD

USED EXCLUSIVELY BY 98 PER CENT OF WORLD'S CREAMERIES

Ten years ago there were a dozen different makes of creamery or factory separators in use. Today over 98 per cent of the world's creameries use De Laval separators exclusively. When it comes to buying a separator why not profit by the experience of the creamery man, which qualifies him to advise you correctly. He knows which separator will give you the best service and be the most economical for you to buy. That's why 98 per cent of the world's creameries use the De Laval exclusively. There can be no better recommendation for the De Laval than the fact that the men who make the separation of milk a business use the De Laval to the practical exclusion of all other makes. They know from experience.

BUDGET OF NEWS FROM THE G.T.P. AND WHAT IS BEING DONE AT POINTS ALONG SYSTEM

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has at present nineteen new stations under constructions along its lines and it is expected that all of them will be completed and ready for service at an early day this spring. The names of the towns at which these stations are being built are as follows:—

Pacific Junction, Beaudry, Cabot, Elie, Harte, Knox, Imrie, Margwen, Obed, Roundcroft, Jasper House, Henry House, Fort Qu'Appelle, Zebner, MP 0 Alberta Coal Branch, Parkgate, Victoria Plains, Borenlee, Ardley and Fitzhugh.

With the exception of antelope and musk-ox British Columbia has every species of big game that exists on the continent; even the rarest of them being found in fair quantities. In addition there are wild fowl and game birds of various species, some native and others acclimatized, that furnish sport, while waters afford the finest salmon fishing in the world. In fact the sporting possibilities are so many that it would be impossible to exhaust them in a lifetime. The Grand Trunk Pacific is opening up virgin territory where the very best hunting will be found.

Some 70 miles up the river from Fort George the "Grand Canon" is reached, and from there a magnificent moose country extends as far as the Little Smoke River. From reliable reports received it is probable that there are more moose to the square mile than in any part of the continent, and every year their numbers seem to increase. So far the country has never been hunted except by a few prospectors. Whether the horns attain the large size of the Cassiar Moose has not yet been determined but some very fine heads have been seen. In this district Caribou are very plentiful on the higher plateau, and in places both grizzly and black bears are numerous.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

THE WEAPONS OF MYSTERY

BY

JOSEPH HOCKING

Author of "All Men are Liars," "Fields of Fair Renown," Etc., Etc.

He went away, leaving me alone, and then all the sensations of the previous night came back to me. I remembered what the ghost was supposed to fortell, and the evil influence the dark red hand on the water's surface. I recalled dimly the struggle, the fighting, the strange feeling I had as my senses began to leave me. Could I have killed him? If I did, I was guiltless of crime. It was not my heart that conceived the thought; it was not I who really did the deed. I had no pangs of conscience, no feeling of remorse, and yet the thought that I had hurried a man into eternity was horrible.

I wandered in the plantation for hours, brooding, thinking, despairing. No pen can describe what I felt, no words can convey to the mind the thoughts and pains of my mind and heart. Never did I love Miss Forrest so much, never was Voltaire's villainy so real; and yet I was to lose her, and that man—a fiend in human form—was to wed her. I could do nothing. He had paralyzed my energies. He had set a command before me which was as ghastly as hell, and yet I dared not disobey. I, a young, strong man, was a slave—a slave of the worst kind. I was the plaything, the tool of a villain. I had to do as he told me; I had to refrain from doing what he told me I was not to do. I had done I know not what. Perchance a hangman's rope was hanging near me even now. I could not tell. And yet I dared not rise from my chains, and see whether the things I had been accused of doing were true.

I went back to the house. Voltaire was gone, while the guests and family were having their lunch. I felt that I could not join them, so I went into the library. I had not been there ten minutes when Miss Forrest entered. She looked pale and worried. I suppose that I, too, must have been haggard, for she started when she saw me. She hesitated a moment, and then spoke.

"The whole party are going for a ride this afternoon. They have just been making arrangements. They are going to ask you to join them. Shall you go?" she asked.

"No; I shall not go," I replied.

"Will you come here at three o'clock?"

"Yes," I said, wondering what she meant; but I had not time to ask her, for two young men came into the room.

I went to my room and tried to think, but I could not. My mind refused to work. I watched the party ride away—it was comparatively small now, for several had returned to their homes—and then I found my way to the library.

I sat for a while in silence, scarcely conscious of my surroundings; and then I wondered how long Miss Forrest would be before she came, and what she would tell me. The clock on the mantlepiece began to strike three; it had not finished when she entered the room.

I placed a chair for her beside my own, which she accepted without a word.

For a minute neither of us spoke; then she said abruptly, "You told me you loved me when we rode out together the other day."

"I did," I said, "and I do love you with all the intensity that a human heart is capable of loving; but it is hopeless now."

"Why?"

"You have promised to marry another man."

"What do you know of this?"

Both of us were very excited. We were moved to talk in an unconventional strain.

"Mr. Temple told me of your interview together last night."

A slight flush came to her face. "But Mr. Temple has told you the condition of the promise as well," she said.

"Yes; but that condition makes me hopeless."

"What!" she cried. "But no, I will not entertain such a thought. You are as innocent as I am."

"Yes, I am innocent in thought, in intent, and in heart; but as for the deed itself, I know not."

"I do not understand you," she said; "you speak in words that convey no meaning to my mind. Will you explain?"

"I cannot, Miss Forrest. I would give all I possess if I could. I have nothing that I would keep secret from you, and yet I cannot tell you that which you would know."

Did she understand me? Did her quick mind guess my condition? I could not tell, and yet a strange look of intelligence flashed from her eyes.

"Mr. Blake," she said, "my soul loathes the thought of marrying that man. If ever my promise has to be fulfilled, I shall die the very day on which he calls me wife."

My heart gave a great throb of joy; her every word gave me hope in spite of myself.

"Mr. Blake," she continued, "I must never marry him."

"God grant you may not," I said.

"I must not," she said, "and you must keep me from danger."

"I, Miss Forrest! I would give the world if I could; but how can I? You do not know the terrible slavery that binds me, neither can I tell you."

"I shall trust in you to deliver me from this man," she went on without heeding me.

"You must prove yourself to be innocent."

"To do that I must bring this man Kaffar. I know nothing of him. I could never find him. Oh, I tell you, Miss Forrest, a thousand evil powers seem to rend me when I attempt to do what I long for."

"I shall trust in you," she cried. "Surely you are sufficiently interested in me to save me from a man like Voltaire?"

"Interested?" I cried. "I would die for you, I love you so. And yet I can do nothing."

"You can do something; you can do everything. You can save me from him."

"Oh, I cried, "I know I must appear a pitiful coward to you. It is for me you have placed yourself in this position, while I refuse to try to liberate you from it. If I only could; if I dared! But I am chained on every hand."

"But you are going to break those chains; you are going to be free; you are going to be happy."

Her words nerved me. The impossible seemed possible, and yet everything was misty.

"Only one thing can make me happy," I said, "and that can never be now. I have lost my strength; I am become a pitiful coward."

"You are going to be happy!" she repeated.

"Miss Forrest," I said, "do not mock me. My life for days has been a hell I have had a terrible existence; no light shines in the sky. You cannot think what your words mean to me, or you would not speak them."

"Will you not, for my sake, if not for your own, exert yourself? Will you not think of my happiness a little. The thought of marrying that man is madness."

"Miss Forrest," I cried, "you must think I have lost all manhood, all self-respect, when you hear what I say; but the only thing that could make me think of trying to do what is ten thousand times my duty to do, is that you will give me some hope that, if I should succeed, you will be the wife of such a poor thing as I am."

She looked at me intently. She was very pale, and her eyes shone like stars. Beautiful she looked beyond compare, and so grand, so noble. She was tied down to no conventionalities; whither her pure heart led her, she followed.

"If you succeed," she said," I will be your wife."

"But not simply from a feeling of pity?" I cried. "I could not let you do that. I have manliness enough for that even yet."

"No," she said proudly, "but because you are the only man I ever did or can love."

For a minute I forgot my woes, my pains. No ghastly deed taunted me with its memory, no dark cloud hung in the skies. I felt my Gertrude's lips against mine; I felt that her life was given to me. I was no longer alone and desolate; a pure, beautiful woman had trusted me so fully, so truly, that hope dawned in my sky, and earth was heaven.

"Now, Justin," she said, after a few minutes of happy silence, "You must away. Every hour may be precious. God knows how gladly I would be with you, but it must not be. But remember, my hope lies in you, and my love is given to you. God bless you!"

She went away then and left me; while I, without knowing why, prepared to start for London.

I had a great work to do. I had, if I was to win Gertrude for my wife, to break and crush Voltaire's power over me. I had to find Kaffar, if he was to be found, and that to me was an awful uncertainty, and I had to bring him to Gertrude before the next Christmas Eve.

Away from her the skies were dark again, great heavy weights rested on my heart, and my life seemed clogged. Still her love had nerved me to do what I otherwise could never have done. It had nerved me to try: and so, with her warm kisses burning on my lips, I hurried off to the great metropolis without any definite idea why I was going.

CHAPTER XIV.

God.

For the next three months I was an atheist! These are easy words to write, but terrible to realize. No one but those who know can tell the terror of a man who has given up belief in an Eternal Goodness, in a living God that cares for man.

I left Yorkshire with some little hope in my heart—the memory of Gertrude's words was with me, cheering me during the long ride; but when once alone in my rooms, nothing but a feeling of utter desolation possessed my heart. The terrible night on the Yorkshire moo... came back again, the dark forbidding waters, the ghastly red hand, the gleaming knife, the struggle—all were real. Did I kill him? I did not know. Possibly I was a murderer in act, if not in thought. I could not bear to think of it. Who can bear to think of having taken away a fellow-creature's life? And he might be lying in Dreariwater Pond even then!

Then there was the terrible spell that this man had cast upon me. I felt it clinging to every fibre of my being. I was not living a true life; I was living a dual life. A power extraneous to myself, and yet possessing me, made me a mere machine. As the days and weeks passed away things became worse. I promised Gertrude to exert myself to find Kaffar, to set her free from her promise to Voltaire; but I could not do it. His command was upon me. I felt that it was ever in his mind that I should not make any efforts, and I had to obey. And his power was evil, his motives were fiendish, his nature was depraved. Still preachers talked of a loving God, of the good being stronger than the evil. It could not be.

"Try! try! Resist! resist! Struggle! struggle!" said hope and duty and love; and I tried, I resisted, I struggled. And still I was bound in chains; still I was held by a mysterious occult power.

Then it ceased to feel to be a duty to rid Gertrude of Voltaire. Why should I struggle and resist? Supposing I succeeded, was I any more fit to be her husband than he? What was I? At best a poor weak creature, the plaything of a villain. At any time he could exert his power and make me his slave. But I might be worse than that. I might, with my own hand, have sent a man to eternity. How did I know it was Voltaire's power that made me do the deed? Might not my blind passion have swept me on to this dark deed? But that could not be. No, no; I could not believe that. Besides, Voltaire had told me it was because of him. Still, I was not fit to be her husband.

Then her words came back to me, and her pure influence gave me strength. She, so pure, so true, had seemed to understand my position, had bid me hope and be brave. She had told me she loved me—she, whom hundreds of brave men would love to call their own. I would try again. I would break the chains Voltaire had forged; I would hurl from me the incubus that would otherwise crush me.

I tried again, and again, and again, and again I failed.

I did not pray. I could not. If God cared, I thought, He would help the innocent. I was innocent in thought, and still I was not helped. God did not care, for He helped me not. Months had passed away, and I had taken no forward step. I was still enslaved. The preachers were wrong: God did not care for the beings He had made.

"Ah, I see," said the parson; "and she was domineering and extravagant, and she drove you to desperate courses eh?"

"No," said the prisoner, "my old woman turned up."

The re-construction of Goodrick House, Hatfield, has disclosed the remains of a Sixteenth Century timber building, which has been hidden by brickwork for over 200 years. An idea which is being worked out at the present time is the adoption of the Morse Code for the use of airmen. AN OPPORTUNITY FOR DISTRICTS

Chairman McNichol of Dry-Farming Congress Exposition Makes Statement.

Mr. J. W. McNicol, chairman of the Dry-Farming Products Exposition, in an address before the Alberta Fairs' association at Calgary, speaking of "The International Dry-Farming Congress and Exposition and the Opportunity it presents to the Agricultural Societies of the Province," said:

"For the past three or four years the Southern end of the Province, as represented by Cardston, Macleod, Taber and Lethbridge, has been giving special attention to the International Dry-farming Congress and Exposition. We have attended the Congress at Cheyenne, Billings, Spokane and Colorado Springs and have had the backing of the government exhibit at the last two places named. The government exhibit has won the grand sweepstakes for the best state or provincial exhibit at Spokane and at Colorado Springs, and our farmers have won a very large proportion of the premiums offered for small grains, grasses and vegetables.

"At Colorado Springs last fall Alberta took almost everything that was not nailed down and secured the Congress and Exposition for 1912 and it will be held at Lethbridge October 21 to 26 next. We believe that in securing this Congress and Exposition for Alberta for 1912, we have done a work which will be of vast and far reaching benefit to the province and to the whole of Western Canada.

"We are aware that in some parts of the Province the name dry-farming is looked upon as offensive, and that with no real knowledge of the object of the Congress, and knowing nothing about it except that its name includes the word "dry", some people are antagonistic to it.

"Dry-farming is the science of agriculture as applied to farm operations in regions of limited or uncertain rainfall.

HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

Minister of Agriculture of Alberta and Vice-President of the International Dry-Farming Congress.

"Dry-farming is better farming and is a profitable system for every farmer upon every farm in every district of the world.

"Dry-farming is not farming without moisture, but is the method by which the natural rainfall is conserved in the soil; soils are enriched and drought resistant plants are developed with the object of saving the moisture. Dry-farming practice develops the best farmers on earth.

"The Congress is a popular, scientific society of farmers, and it is worth hundreds of dollars a year to any farmer to participate actively in its work.

"The adoption of its precepts and teachings will enable any farmer in Western Canada to raise a better and bigger crop than he is now doing.

"This Congress and Exposition is turning the eyes of the entire agricultural world upon this province, and there is no question but that the biggest farming congress that has ever been held, will take place in Lethbridge, October 21 to 26, and we believe that the Exposition which will be held in connection with it will be the best exhibit of agricultural products and agricultural machinery that has ever been held in Canada.

"Every effort is being made to enable the whole province to participate in the benefits that are expected to accrue from this congress and exposition, and one of the methods whereby we expect each district to benefit is in taking part in the exposition. In this exposition it is expected that every agricultural society representing every district in Alberta will have a high class district exhibit, thereby advertising to the great number of American and Eastern Canadian farmers who will be present, the agricultural resources of that district

"The Alberta Department of Agriculture is offering some fine premiums for the best district exhibit. In addition to district exhibit there will also be premiums for the best individual farmer's exhibit. Some of the biggest premiums ever offered are now being arranged for, and will be announced in the premium list. These exhibits will be products of the soil only, and must be grown on land which receives no artificial moisture from irrigation and must have been grown in the season of 1912.

"You note that the date of this Exposition is late, the third week in October, coming after all the local agricultural society expositions, and every society should see to it that it is represented by an exhibit, much of which can be gathered by holding the premium winning exhibits at their own exposition.

"In order to make a successful up-to-date exhibit, it is necessary to begin preparations now. Seeds of high grade in the various varieties should be purchased, carefully planted and attended to, especially for exhibition purposes. The number of varieties of the different grain and grasses shown, will have a large bearing on winning premiums, in fact, next to quality this will be the largest score

"At Lethbridge there will be no charge for space for these exhibits, and all exhibitors will be treated alike.

"The question of obtaining a part of the benefit that the International Dry-Farming Congress and Exposition will bring to Alberta for your own district, lies entirely in your own hands. The opportunity is before you. Get your exhibit ready. Begin to plan for it now, and be present at the Dry-Farming Congress with a district exhibit, which will fully represent the magnificent district from from which you each come.

"I will be pleased to answer any enquiries regarding space or anything else, and trust that each and every society will be represented at the Exposition. Write to W. J. McNicol, chairman Exposition Committee, Dry-Farming Congress, Lethbride, Alberta."

Where New Stars Come From.

An astronomer tells us how new stars come about. Suns fall towards each other and get up speed for hundreds of years, and then there is a nasty jar. Heat is generated by the collision, and a new star is born. Prices are Still Soaring.

The Department of Labour's wholesale prices record up to date shows a still higher level for February than for January, notwithstanding that the latter month was reported as having seen the highest prices since 1882-4 and possibly since 1873. The index number rose during February from 131.4 to 134.3, these being percentages of the average level of prices during the last decade of the last century. The upward movement was largely the result of advances in grains, animals and meats, dairy products and potatoes. Retail prices were also upward, especially in the food products derived from the lines above mentioned.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body * * * * ." He continues, "so we may be said to live (through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than

MRS. MURKEN.

"Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone," writes MRS. G. M. MURKEN, of Corona, Calif. "Had suffered from it, off and on, for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally, I was told it was my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. Whenever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint—it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grew strong fast. To-day I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

WAINWRIGHT, ALTA., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24TH, 1912

No one could describe the condition of certain back yards in the town as deplorable or disgraceful, for in the majority of cases they are tidy and clean. But progressive citizens who would have cleanliness one of their first rules of health and taste, should take the necessary steps to make Wainwright a spotless purity.

g general in the he cultivation of ds of acres over etter proof is at part of Alberta its own. The condition and are for early estimate is is five feet ne is fast is locality, dvantages displayed, now in the are on order The horse antiquat- will ever ork of the man you a stranger hrough the ravans and ng towards indication putting in an appearance. Signs of progress on every hand are visible these days in this district.

Before long the pounding sound of the hammer will re-echo in every corner of the town; the vibration of the saw will sing a joyful tune and remind citizens that buildings are in the course of construction. With the proposed construction of freight sheds and other buildings by the G. T. P., Wainwright's building operations this year should total $200,000.

Street grading has been resumed and certain of the principal streets are taking on the appearance of up-to-date highways. But this is only necessary and expedient with the advancing progress of the town and the times. Ample preparation must be made for the future and from appearances, the immediate future.

Some have stated that the staging of a prize fight at this point is a cheaper grade of western advertising. How do they know? Has a fight of this kind ever been fought in Western Canada? Reno has become world-famous from the mere fact that Johnston and Jeffries fought there for the world's championship.

Certain farmers of the district are reported as working twenty hours a day with the aid of nocturnal illuminations and artificial light. Tractor engines are said to be tearing up the ground during the hours of darkness with glaring headlights attached to them. Hours of darkness make little difference to these determined agriculturalists.

Lend a hand, Mr. Westerner, in the development of your country. Take the initiative if none before you have. Sing long and loud the features of your particular locality, and string the music to a merry tune. If you are living in an optimistic land, show it by your words and actions.

Wainwright is now in line for an electric lighting plant, and the announcement comes at a time when things look most promising for the town. The establishment of a flour mill and the installation of an electric lighting plant will serve as glowing tributes to the new board of trade, which has proven so progressive.

If the board of health enforces the Health Act in detail or as near so as is feasible, certain steps should also be taken to see that glaring generalities are not violated. One of these is the continual practise by many of spitting on the sidewalks, which is not only a filthy habit but sometimes productive of disease.

Advertising Criticism

No publication in Canada is more suspicious at the present time over certain advertising in its columns than the Toronto SaturdayNight and the National Townsite & Colonization Co. is the particular agency which has aroused these suspicions. No stone is being left unturned in an endeavor to ascertain just what truth there is in the advertising matter of this company. Fullest information is being received before any future matter is accepted.

Letters of enquiry have been addressed to several prominent local parties and reply communications have been forwarded. Some are understood to have been loud in declamation, while others are known to have been free from discredit of any kind. Without further explanation from local parties, Saturday Night will be in a position to size up the situation.

The awful catastrophe of the sea with the wreck of the White Star liner, Titanic, and the loss of hundreds of human lives last week has caused the world to stand aghast and shudder at the appalling loss of life, of property and of scientific ideas and theories. It has been proven that even the masterpieces of the sea are anything but proof against the rule of the waves, and no ship in future can be relied upon as safe and trustworthy.

The evolution of the most reliable shipbuilding was fashioned in the Titanic, and was rated as "unsinkable", yet the faith of the world has been broken with the ocean burial of this great ship. It has served to break the prevalent assumption that modern ocean liners cannot sink, and will serve many valuable ends in this direction, yet the expense of arriving at this conclusion has been great.

It ill becomes the editor who sets at his desk and grinds out commonplace copy and spends the rest of his time buttonholing prominent citizens and indulging in highballs to poke fun at his less fortunate brother of the country press who needs must do the work of manager, editor, makeup man, compositor solicitor and devil. Sometimes this busy man gets things mixed and allows glaring errors to go into his paper, but it is not much wonder if he should. Such errors are really no reflection on his intelligence and with a fair field he has been known to beat the plush tripod editor in editorial writing when it has come to the test.

HOWARD DISPLAYS SUPERIOR ABILITY AGAIN WINNING TWO STRAIGHT FALLS

In Cleverest Match Yet Witnessed Here Howard Fights for Supremacy

Superior in many, yet rougher in several respects to any that have yet been witnessed here, was the manner in which the wrestling bout held in the local Auditorium on Thursday evening last between Jack Howard and Tom Wallace, was described by the followers of the game who attended. No hold, other than the Lewis strangle, was barred, these conditions giving both a wide scope, and particularly Howard who was doubtless a little more skilled than his opponent.

Howard, repeating his several exhibitions, won out in two successive falls, the first being made twenty minutes after the bout started. He recognized from the beginning of the contest that he was matched against a strong opponent, who was as familiar with the game as the majority of wrestlers. Breaking dangerous holds, Wallace displayed more finesse and skill than any of the opponents who have faced Howard here. Half Nelsons, crotch and even full Nelsons were broken on repeated occasions, yet Wallace was unable to wriggle from the head scissors and hammer locks which were responsible for both decisions.

The victor stated in no uncertain terms that Wallace was the best man he had wrestled for sometime. Howard was forced to work hard at times and particularly when on the bottom, where his superior giant strength told to advantage. Wallace was noticeably the weaker of the two, yet his skill was undoubtedly equal at stages of the game Coal and entirely collected, the vanquished wrestler was confident that he would tire Howard and force him to the mat. Howard proved equal to the occasion and deceived him.

W. J. McLean, who has refereed the previous bouts held here, again officiated in the same fair and impartial manner as before. He did not particularly favor the holds by which Wallace went down and was of the opinion that the conditions were altogether too severe, and many were of the same mind. It is probable that the two men will meet at a future date.

Illiteracy.

The term "illiterate" includes all persons at least 10 years of age unable to write their own language, a majority of these being also unable to read. In the United States, including aliens, negroes, Indians and Mongolians, 106 in every 1,000 of population 10 years of age or over are illiterate. The last reports on illiteracy are not in, but according to the last 46 of every 1,000 of our white native born over the age of 10 could not read or write. The great majority of such illiterates are found along the Appalachian mountain range and in the remote piney woods of some of our Southern States, where the distance and the scarcity of the population make Public schools well nigh impossible.—Christian Herald Almanac.

The Man of 45.

"Among the men I hire, nine out of ten are better workers at 45 years of age than are men of 25 or 30," declared the secretary and manager of a Chicago commercial house. This executive believes that the man of 45 or thereabouts is in the prime of life physically and mentally. Men of mature years are more reliable, he avers, more trustworthy, and are not apt to be possessed of that restlessness and indecision which so often characterizes youth, and which leads younger men continually from one position to another. The average young man in business, he holds, is always seeking a "soft snap." Job and is not content with sticking it out with an employer through thick and thin until his services become highly valuable and perhaps indispensable.—Business Magazine.

Why Should I Use Cuticura Soap?

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 7M, Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two page book on the skin and hair.

An Artist's Death.

A Detroit newspaper recently announced the death in a charitable institution of "a old man, once a painter of 'some fame' at the advanced age of 80 years. Ill health and grief at the loss of his wife and two children, he says, when he was still, comparatively, a young man had, it was said, robbed his right hand of its cunning. His patrons slipped away, and at 50 he was both homeless and penniless. As is not always the case under similar circumstances, a number of his old friends stuck to him in his adversity, and agreed that if his admission into some institution could be managed, as being the only open door, they would pay for his maintenance. This was arranged, and the offer communicated to him, only however to be received with scorn. Later he was told that he had been appointed assistant of the home without salary, a position (?) which he occupied for 20 long years, and he died innocent of the deception and rejoicing in the belief that he had finished his days without becoming an object of charity. Cases such as this should be startling enough to awaken the most indifferent to a realization of the terrible condition of an old age of want and penury, and to an immediate determination to adopt some absolutely sure means of safeguarding himself against such a calamity. The Government of Canada has supplied its people with this means, and by the payment at any Postal Money Order Office of a small amount weekly, monthly or as may be otherwise arranged protection against an old age of dependence and humiliation may be made with absolute certainty. For example, the payment of $1 a week by a man of 25 until he is 55 would give him an Annuity from the latter age of $258.25, payable quarterly; while if he continued paying until he was 60, his Annuity would be $397.36. In either case, if he died before the date fixed for the Annuity to begin all his payments with compound interest at 3 per cent. would be refunded to his legal representatives.

Literature descriptive of the features of the Annuities System, and tables showing the cost of Annuities on different plans, may be obtained at the Post Office or on application to the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage.

WOMEN IN ALL PARTS OF CANADA

TELL OF THE HEALTH DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS BRING

They Made a New Woman of Mrs. Elie Amirault Who Was a Victim of Kidney Disease for Over a Year.

Amirault's Hill, Yarmouth Co., N.S. —(Special.) "Four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of me." Those are the words of Mrs. Elie Amirault of this place. They are words that have been used again and again by women in all parts of Canada who have suffered, and who have found relief, and cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I suffered for over a year from kidney disease," Mrs. Amirault continued, "and tried [illegible] medicine and whispered.

At last some one told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had finished the first box I felt better. Four boxes made a new woman of me."

No remedy ever given to the public has brought health and happiness into the lives of so many women as Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is because nine-tenths of the ills to which women are subject come from diseased kidneys. No woman who uses Dodd's Kidney Pills can have diseased kidneys. They always cure the kidneys.

Plea for the Musk Ox.

A plea for the reindeer and the musk ox is made by Knud Rasmussen and Peter Freuchen, the Danish polar explorers, who have sent a report on their investigations from north-western Greenland to the Royal Geographical Society in Copenhagen.

The explorers say that the reindeer are all but extinct in the Cape York district, only thirty-five head remaining. Musk oxen are now only found in Ellesmere Land, and American explorers are said to be exterminating them at a rapid rate.

Rasmussen and Freuchen, who recognize the need the Eskimos have of these animals and their skins, intend to introduce fresh reindeer herds from Lapland, and are endeavoring to persuade the Eskimos to agree to observe a close time with a view to their preservation.

Getting the News.

The young girl sat in her bedroom with a novel. Her hair was down and her feet were in red slippers. Now and then, extending her white arms, she yawned.

You see, it was very late, and downstairs in the parlor her older sister was entertaining a young man. She naturally felt a deep interest in the entertainment. She was waiting to hear how it would terminate.

And at last there was a sound in the hall, a crash as of a closing door, and it was plain to the innocent girl that the young man had gone.

She threw down her novel and, running forth, peered over the balustrade down into the hall's intense blackness.

"Well, Maude," she said, "did you land him?"

There was no immediate reply to her question. There was a silence, a peculiar silence, a silence with a certain strained quality in it. Then a masculine voice replied:—

"She did."

Weighed the Argument.

When Charles A. Dana was at the head of the New York Sun, a young graduate of Cornell was assigned to the reviewing of books. One of the first handed him was a massive volume purporting to be a life of Napoleon, written by a college professor.

The young reviewer had, as it happened, specialized on the life of Napoleon under a great authority at his university and he thought but little of the effort that was submitted to him by his editorial chief. He glanced over the illustrations, laid the book aside, and turned in this comment:—

"Life of Napoleon, by Prof. So-and-So. The book weighs nine pounds."

Mr. Dana read the review and sent for the Cornell man.

"Did you write this review?" he growled.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you read the book?" growled Mr. Dana, with a fiercer look than before.

"No, sir. I weighed it."

"That will do," growled the chief.

Then he sent word downstairs to the cashier to raise the young man's salary.

MARCH WEATHER RHEUMATIC WEATHER

Victims Can Cure Themselves With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

With the coming of March people who are afflicted with rheumatism begin to have unpleasant reminders of their trouble. The weather is changeable—balmy and springlike one day, raw, cold and piercing the next. It is such sudden changes of weather that sets the pangs and tortures of rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica going. But it must be borne in mind that although weather conditions start the pains, the trouble is deeply rooted in the blood and can only be cured through the blood. All the lotions and liniments in the world can't cure rheumatism. Rubbing may seem to ease the pain while you are rubbing, but there its value ends. Only through the blood can you cure rheumatism. That's why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have so many thousands of cures of this trouble to their credit. The new, rich blood which they actually make drives out the poisonous acids and rheumatism is vanquished. Here is an example. Mr. W. C. Douglas, Webbwood, Ont., says: "I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism, which spread through my entire system. For two months I was not able to go about, and seemed to be hovering between life and death. My joints were swollen and my legs and arms twisted, until I expected that they would never return to their normal shape. The doctor seemed to help me, but not to cure me, and I would be better one day and worse the next. At this time a friend strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got a dozen boxes. Soon after beginning the pills there was a change for the better, and I continued using the pills until I was quite well again. The swelling disappeared from the joints. My limbs returned to the natural shape and I feel as if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved me from being a rheumatic cripple. I hope my experience may prove a blessing to some other sufferer."

If you suffer from rheumatism, or any other disease of the blood, begin to cure yourself to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Landed

There was a bachelor who had courted a young lady for a long time without coming to the point, and one evening in leap year, the young lady being very musical, he took her to a concert.

The orchestra played No. 6, a selection that seemed to the bachelor very beautiful. He [illegible] his companion and whispered.

"How lovely that is! What is it, do you know?"

"It is the 'Maiden's Prayer.'"

And at the same time she handed him her programme, pointing to No. 6 with her finger.

He read and started, for the real name of the selection was "Mendelssohn's Wedding March." The bachelor bought the ring next day.

Subject to Attachment.

A business man wrote his lawyer asking information touching the standing of a person who owed him a considerable sum of money for a long time.

"What property has he that I could attach?" was one of the questions.

The lawyer's reply was to the point:—

"The man to whom you refer," was the answer, "died a year ago. He has left nothing subject to attachment except a widow."

"Not with a hammer, possibly. But you give her a hair brush and she can drive a nail as well as anybody."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock, will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 4, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

MARKS ON SILVER AND GOLD

Marking Made Compulsory in Great Britain and Europe From the Year 1363.

Silver and gold articles made in Great Britain and Ireland from the year 1363 were required to be marked with a maker's symbol or initial letters, says the "Queen." In addition it had been ordained in the year 1300 that a leopard's head, or, more accurately, a lion's head, should also be stamped on every piece. This head bore a crown until the year 1821.

In the year 1544, in addition to the maker's mark and lion's head, it was ordained that a lion passant should be placed on all silver. From March, 1696, to June, 1720, Britannia and lion's head erased were substituted for the leopard's head and lion passant.

In addition to these marks, the assayer impressed a date letter from about 1428. The date letter began with A, and went onward with each successive letter of the alphabet in a cycle of twenty years. Each cycle was distinguished by a different form of letter and different shape of the vacloning shield. As far as has yet been discovered, the earliest dated piece is of the year 1479, though we find instances of silver with the date of nearly all subsequent years.

It must not, however, be forgotten that much beautiful gold and silver work is still in existence which was made in England and Ireland long before the regulations for marking it existed. It may seem remarkable that it is in Ireland that we find the finest work in metals, and that from the fifth to the tenth century Irish work is found in the highest perfection and equal to any made in Europe. Two most beautiful specimens, both of which can be seen in the Royal Irish Academy, are the Ardagh chalice and the Tara brooch.

In considering plate, there is that important section, ecclesiastical plate, and it is sad to think how few and comparatively unimportant are the specimens of church plate made prior to the Reformation that still exist. We read, for instance, that St. Olave's, Southwark, in the year 1552 possessed more than 1,000 ounces of silver — chalices, crosses, basins, pyxes, chrismatory, censers, cruets, etc. These have all disappeared, and in like manner the silver plate, almost without exception, which formed a precious possession in every parish throughout the United Kingdom and Ireland.

In the last year of King Edward VI. instructions were issued by which all church plate was seized and confiscated, excepting one or two chalices, according to the population. All the rest were seized for conversion to the King's use. No doubt some pieces were hidden away in their respective parishes; but at any rate when Mary came to the throne all these precious relics, however preserved, came into use again. On Elizabeth coming to the throne, all the former prohibitions came into force, and we find inquiries made in each parish whether they possessed "any chalyce or challes, dishes or chalices heretofore used at masse."

Rain And Lightning.

Rain and lightning are very closely associated, but not in the way most people suppose," said an expert on electricity after a recent thunderstorm. The fallacious supposition arises from the observations made during thunder storms by people who reason wholly from what they can see. When the thunderhead obscures the sky every peal of thunder is followed by an increased downpour of rain. Since lightning precedes all thunder, it seems reasonable to conclude that the rain is caused by the discharge of electricity. The reverse is true, however. When the air of the thunderheads, heavily laden with moisture and heavily charged with electricity comes in contact with a cooler current of air, the moisture condenses, becomes water, and the condensation frees the electricity. The liberated electricity rushes along the lines of which is charged to a normal degree, or to another thunderhead which is charged in a lesser degree. The movement of the electric current, after condensation, is so rapid that the whole process is complete before the drops of water reach the earth. There is a certain amount of condensation caused by the electric explosions, but this is slight.

Theodore Dreiser, the novelist-editor, was talking in New York about criticism.

"I like pointed criticism," he said, "criticism such as I heard in the lobby of a theatre the other night at the end of a play.

"The critic was an old gentleman. His critical faculty, which was for his wife's ears alone, consisted of these words:

"'Well, you would come.'"—New York Press.

The Overdraft

"To continually sow and reap without replacing anything in the soil, is much like a man having a bank account at the beginning of his career, but who continually draws cheques against his account without thinking to make a deposit. The only result is an overdraft—a sterile soil."—Gen. Louis Botha, Premier of the South African Union.

Dreaming.

"There would be fewer divorces," said "Big Tim" Sullivan, at a banquet in New York, "if men treated their wives with absolute candor. There are too many husbands of Cholmondeley's stamp.

"As Cholmondeley blew the froth from a large glass of beer one evening, a friend said to him:—

"'I hear you've had your pay raised, Cholmondeley.'

"'Yes, but it did me no good,' and Cholmondeley drained his glass and pushed it to the bartender for refilling.

"'Did you no good? Why not?'

"'I talked in my sleep,' Cholmondeley replied, 'and my wife got on to it.'"

Mercury.

Why does quicksilver run away when we touch it?

Quicksilver is not silver, but it has a silvery appearance. The strict chemical name for it means watersilver, says the Children's Encyclopedia, but the name by which it is generally known is mercury. Quicksilver is not a kind of silver, nor a mixture of water and silver, nor anything else but itself. It belongs to a group of the metals, like gold and silver, lead, iron and so on, but it is unlike all other metals in being liquid at ordinary temperatures. Quicksilver is very heavy, so that even iron and lead can float on it.

The tiny particles of quicksilver have a great attraction for each other. The reason we cannot pick up quicksilver is that it is liquid. Being a liquid, it runs, as water does, and that is what happens when it is touched. Quicksilver was discovered more than 2,000 years ago.

Proclamation

By resolution from the Town Council I am authorized to Proclaim Wednesday the First Day of May a Public Holiday for the purpose of "Cleaning up Day". Citizens please govern themselves accordingly.

H. Y. Pawling, Mayor.

The appearance of several backyards, facing the station, are in a very bad shape, and the untidiness has been commented on by many who daily pass through here. These premises should be cleaned up immediately and even before the day, which has been set aside for that purpose.

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Thomas' Church of England was held on Monday evening and the following officers elected for the year,—Incumbent's Warden, H. B. Davison; People's Warden, A. E. Mills; Vestry, Dr. Watson, G. L. Gregson, R. E. R. Webster and H. W. Crampton.

WHY HE WAS LATE

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by all dealers.

way liable. The sickness had been contracted here, and although it was alleged that it started at the Park Hotel, these premises were not public property. On these grounds, he was of the firm opinion that the town was in no sense liable. At an rate, it must be first proved that the town had been negligent and that the illness had been contracted at the Park Hotel. In that event, another course would be open, which would protect the town from damages.

A delegation from the board of trade was present and President James of that body respectfully recommended that the by-law, relative to the flour mill and site, be drawn up and submitted at the earliest possible moment. President James stated that Mr. Bird was awaiting a communication regarding the lots, and wished a definite answer immediately. A portion of Mr. Bird's letter to President James was read to the council and it was certainly to the effect that he wanted immediate arrangements made. Confirmation of the reserve of lots 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19 in block 1 had been received by wire from the International Securities Co., that day, and the president thought that Mr. Bird should be informed of this. It was finally decided that Mr. Bird be notified as to the reservation, and the by-law committee be authorized to draw up a by-law, relative to the flour mill and site.

An application from L. P. Hussey of the Park Hotel for permission [illegible] addition, pool was read, and Mr. Hussey given permission to proceed, pending the favorable decision of the board of health as to the proper location, comparative to the old receptacle.

The council then resolved itself into a committee of the whole with Counc. Crawford in the chair. The public was asked to vacate the room and they moved out to allow free and easy discussion on matters, relative to committee business. It could not be described as Star Chamber methods, for it was the first occasion on which ratepayers have been shut out, yet the Star representative moved with the crowd, and consequently nothing further remains at this time to be reported.
